

This conference is sponsored by the International Consortium of Academic Conferences, hereafter referred to as ICAC.

Registration fee includes participation in the conference, publication of the contribution in the conference proceedings and/or conference abstracts (whichever is appropriate), a certificate of attendance, breakfast during conference, badge, conference accessories and coffee breaks.

It is the author's responsibility to ensure that all necessary references and citations are present, that all research is original to the author, that references and citations are correct, and that the contribution does not contain any material that infringes copyright, or is defamatory, obscene or otherwise unlawful or litigious.

Copyright in the article will remain jointly with the owner of the copyright and the Publisher. By submitting an article to the conference, the owner of the copyright grants the publisher with a license to publish the article. The author warrants that he is the owner of all rights of copyright in the article. Where the author subsequently publishes the article, the author is requested to acknowledge the article appeared in the conference proceedings. The Author(s) will indemnify and defend the Publisher against any claim, demand or recovery against the Publisher by reason of any violation of any proprietary right or copyright, or because of any libelous or scandalous matter contained in the manuscript.

Photographs or videos (including audio) may be taken of the authors and participants at the conference. ICAC reserves the right, unless we are advised to the contrary by you in writing, to use these photographs or video clips as part of future ICAC promotional material, such as in brochures, social media (for instance, twitter and facebook) and on the website. ICAC will not sell any pictures or authorize any third party to use the pictures. We will not use pictures for any purpose other than promotional purposes.

If you do not want the pictures to be used in our promotional materials, it is your responsibility to inform us in writing. Authors and participants will be asked to fill out a feedback form at the end of each conference. ICAC may use this material in future promotions unless you withhold your permission via written notice.

Authors and participants must abide by the conference venue providers' full IT policy and may not use conference venue IT or network facilities for any unlawful activities. ICAC and/or the conference venue providers may bar access at any time to computers that appear to cause unreasonable consumption of network resources, that pose a danger to the security or integrity of any system or network, or that for any reason may bring disrepute to ICAC or the conference venue. In consideration of your participation in the conference, you agree to indemnify ICAC and the conference venue provider from and against any and all losses that they may suffer, and that are the result of your use of the conference venue provider's IT and network facilities.

ICAC is not directly or indirectly affiliated with any university, organization, or hotel where the conference is held. ICAC shall not be liable for any negligence, breach of contract, or willful misbehavior on the part of the conference venue, its agents or employees, any third-party vendors or contractors, or for the conduct of authors and participants attending the conference.

Conference authors and participants are expected to conduct themselves with dignity and decorum and to foster an atmosphere of civil discourse, even when an issue or topic is controversial. Antisocial conduct, including offensive remarks, harassment (including sexual harassment), stalking, bullying, public intoxication, or any other behavior that is disruptive to the regular order of conference business shall be cause for ejection from the conference and from the conference venue. Disagreements and arguments, when conducted respectfully and in furtherance of scholarly learning, shall not be a violation of this policy.

ICAC reserves the right to vary or cancel the conference due to emergencies, Acts of God, or other circumstances beyond ICAC's control which render commencement or continuation of the conference impracticable. In such event ICAC shall reschedule the conference and credit each participant's registration fee in full toward registration for a future conference. In the unlikely even the conference must be cancelled, registered authors and participants will be and credited. In the event of cancellation by registered authors or participants, the conference registration fee in full shall be credited toward a future ICAC conference of the author or participant's choosing. This credit does not expire and will remain valid until used. To the extent permitted by law, neither ICAC nor its presenters will be liable by reason of breach of contract, negligence or otherwise for any loss or consequential loss occasioned to any person acting, omitting to act, or refraining from acting in reliance upon the conference material or presentation or, except to the extent that any such loss does not exceed the price of the course, arising from or connected with any error or omission in the conference material or presentation. Consequential loss shall be deemed to include, but is not limited to, any loss of profits or anticipated profits, damage to reputation or goodwill, loss of business or anticipated business, damages, costs, expenses incurred or payable to any third party or any other indirect or consequential losses.

By registering for the conference, you acknowledge that you have read and understood these terms and conditions, and your act of registration constitutes your acceptance of same. Any dispute arising out of or as a result of these terms and conditions shall be governed by the laws of the State of Louisiana. These terms and conditions constitute the entire agreement between you and ICAC with respect to the conference and all conference-related transaction. The terms and conditions supersede all prior or contemporaneous communications and proposals, whether electronic, oral or written between you and ICAC. No modification of the terms and conditions shall be effective unless it is authorized in writing by ICAC. If any provision of the terms and conditions is found to be contrary to law, then such provision(s) shall be constructed in a manner to closely reflect, as much as possible, the intentions of the parties, with the other provisions remaining in full force and effect.